Dear Billie:

I enjoyed meeting you when you visited our offices earlier this week. I must commend you - the training session went smoothly despite our initial computer problems. You seemed at ease and very familiar with the material.

As per our discussion concerning the enhancement package for ProCom+, please send me a copy of the upgrade. I have arranged to purchase the newest version of the communication software which is compatible with the Atlis enhancement.

I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Sincerely,

Diana E. McCauley
Legal Assistant

Dear Billie:

I just wanted to write and say thank you for a very informative and beneficial computer training session. Everyone who attended felt that it was time well spent. I am personally very glad that you spent extra time explaining the log-on procedure, because I would never have been able to do it having only seen it one time. Since this case is seemingly terminal, I am sure we will have a long and enjoyable working relationship.

Yours very truly,

Dear Dana:

Ms. Billie R. McNamara, a legal assistant who has worked with me on a variety of matters over the past few years, is going to be moving to the Norfolk, Virginia, area in a few weeks. Could you recommend an attorney whom she could contact at your firm's Norfolk office?

Billie has seven years' paralegal experience, both in private firms and in-house settings. Her strengths are in litigation management (especially high-volume document cases) and automated litigation support/computerization. However, Billie is also an experienced drafter of pleadings who is able to solve problems on her own initiative. Billie works well independently, but does not overstep the professional limits of a legal assistant. Clients like her.

I have given Billie numerous, complex files and projects. For example, she outlined damages in a $20 million directors and officers' liability case in which I represented FDIC. She "followed the money" on some forty loans, many involving transfers among sham corporate entities. She subsequently worked in Los Angeles with me to institute regionalization of the handling of defense of products' liability suits pending in every state. Billie was the legal assistant primarily responsible for setting up a document repository for approximately one million pages of documents.

I enclose a copy of Billie's resume. You will note that she has experience with both plaintiff and defense work. In my opinion, her expertise is strongest in banking/finance and commercial/contract law.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Ms. Billie R. McNamara was employed by our firm for a period of time ending in March, 1989. During that time, I had occasion to observe Ms. McNamara, as did other people in the firm with whom she worked more closely.

Ms. McNamara is a highly intelligent, highly motivated, capable and competent employee. She was asked to do extraordinary work at our firm, including going to the west coast on a work project that is out of the ordinary job requirement for most employees. Ms. McNamara performed these duties well and she certainly added greatly to her stature by performing some very difficult tasks which were above and beyond the call of duty.

I would highly recommend Ms. McNamara as being very hard-working, in addition to the other qualities I have mentioned. I certainly wish her the very best and know that she will have success at whatever she undertakes.

Yours truly,

MORTON, LEWIS, KING & KRIEG

Re: Billie McNamara

Dear Charlie:

I write to express our appreciation for all the dedication and hard work displayed by Ms. McNamara during the ATV emergency assistance project in Torrance last summer.

We understand that this project required people to operate in an awkward and difficult environment. It was only through the extra efforts of people like Ms. McNamara that we were able to achieve the goals of the project. She is to be commended. Your firm is fortunate to have such a fine employee.

Very truly yours,
